Immunoanalyse & Biologie Spécialisée* statement of human and animal rights

Publication requirements, human and animal rights

As stated in the Uniform Requirements for Manuscripts Submitted to Biomedical Journals proposed by the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors (ICMJE, 2006), articles reporting work on human subjects must respect their right to privacy and thus cannot be published without their informed consent. Information which could be used to identify such subjects cannot be published in any form whatsoever, directly (text, photo) or indirectly. If such information is essential for the scientific contribution, publication remains prohibited unless the subject (or parents or legal guardian) provides specific informed consent after having viewed the article in its final form before publication, in compliance with French law relative to the protection of private life and the use of personal data for medical research purposes. If there is any doubt, an informed consent will be required. The authors, editors and publishers must comply with French law concerning the protection of private life in relation to medical research. When reporting experiments on human subjects, authors should indicate whether the procedures followed were in accordance with the ethical standards of the responsible committee on human experimentation (in France: Comité Consultatif National d'Ethique, CCNE) and with the Helsinki Declaration as revised in 2008. When reporting experiments on animals, authors should indicate whether the institutional and national guide for the care and use of laboratory animals was followed (in France: Charte du Comité National de Réflexion Ethique sur l'Expérimentation Animale).
